WASATCH THE COURAGE TO TRY FRONT

by John Moellmer

Maybe it was the cold, damp, misty air, or the first morning light revealing the snow-covered hills, but whatever the cause, the race started fast and strong. This year's Wasatch Front 100 Mile Endurance Run had the greatest percentage of finishers since becoming a run with hundreds of runners. A 75-percent finish rate speaks to great conditions for running. The trail was firm, the air cool, and the night was calm.

Entering the race for the first time, Nicholas Clark took first place men's with a time of 20:21:04. Behind him in a time of 21:19:11, Neal Gorman came in second. Never mind that Neal had finished the other three Grand Slam races with a record combined time of 74:54:16. In third place was Matthew Hart with a time of 21:54:38. Matthew also ran the Wasatch 100 for the first time. Darcy Africa was the first place woman, finishing in 23:20:01. Darcy is not new to Wasatch and had previously completed the Ultrarunning Grand Slam as well. The second place woman was Suzanne Lewis with 27:27:29, followed by Lorie Hutchison in a time of 29:48:32.

Not only was the finish rate higher than seen in many, many years, so too was the number of runners finishing in under 24 hours. The number of these "Crimson Cheetahs" was a big 16, all of whom lined up for the bizarre and cruel induction into the "Royal Order of the Crimson Cheetah". To be inducted into the order, runners are required to kneel on the ground to receive their crowns (from Burger King).

This year we also had three ten-time finishers: Marc Collman, David Klein, and Michael Schlier. Finishing one Wasatch is hard enough, but finishing ten of them is really over the top. Each received a ten-year ring in commemoration of their accomplishment. Rick Gates added to his legendary status by finishing Wasatch again and claimed his 26th finish (of 26 starts) for over a quarter of a century of running Wasatch.

The "Spirit of the Wasatch" award was presented to Troy Olson for his long time contribution to the race. Troy provides the race with lots of administrative support, helps with copying, and even created a new finish line banner within days of the finish. Troy certainly exemplifies the ideal of excellence that Wasatch celebrates.

This year, 50 percent of the runners who finished were first-time entrants. Wasatch prides itself on being a run designed for first-timers, providing a level of care and concern to foster a love of the sport. Indeed, at the pre-race meeting, race director John Grobben said, "There are many famous runners here and we're not going to talk about any of you." For the race committee, that's the charm of Wasatch; giving new, scared, and willing first-timers a chance. Like all the entrants at 5:00 a.m. on Friday morning, they had the courage to try.

The Grand Slam is held at the conclusion of the Wasatch 100 to recognize those runners finishing four of the oldest 100-mile runs; Western States, Vermont, Leadville, and Wasatch. This year 13 runners were able to complete this grueling challenge: Aaron Mulder, Chad Piala, Dale Holdaway, David Larsen, Drew Meyer, Ernie Floyd, Grant Sisler, Harris Goodman, Jamshid Khajavi, Keith Straw, Neal Gorman, Shawn Krause, and William Cook.
